Pupils are a real class act

Educational excellence is an issue close to Adrian Bailey's heart – so he was only too proud to welcome a group of award-winning pupils from his constituency as special guests at Westminster.

Seven youngsters from Tipton Green Primary School spent four months making a one-minute film called 'Litterbugs Kill', which won the West Midlands category of the national 'Made It Happen' awards.

The film was produced in conjunction with Tipton Litterwatch's 'Think Before You Throw' campaign, and as a result the pupils got to spend a day as guests of Adrian at the House of Commons.

He said: "I was immensely proud to have a local school represented in parliament as the West Midlands winners of the 'Made It Happen' competition. It was a wonderful demonstration of the work being done by our local pupils and teachers at the school, and it really showed that Sandwell students can be at the leading edge of IT learning.

"By doing a project in conjunction with Tipton Litterwatch it demonstrated the willingness of our local pupils to work with valuable community organisations to promote their own community."
